QUITE A TANGLE.

Witnesses of Friday's Tragedy tell Varying Stories.

DIFFICULTY IN ESTABLISHING

WHICH OF THE TWO MEN, DEVINNEY OR JOHNSON, KILLED CHARLES McLAUGHLIN—SHORT STILL CONTENDS THAT JOHNSON DID THE WORK—THE VICTIM'S FUNERAL OCCURRED YESTERDAY—HEARING ON WEDNESDAY.

The fact that so many persons witnessed the Johnson-Devinney-McLaughlin tragedy of last Friday afternoon is making it difficult to settle to the satisfaction of everybody who, Devinney or Johnson, killed Charles McLaughlin. This uncertainty comes as a result of the coroner's inquest held Saturday evening, at which a large number of eye-witnesses to the tragedy testified. Some of these witnesses testified that the shooter of the two men (Devinney), who was dressed in dark clothes and wore a Derby hat, was firing at McLaughlin. However, none of these witnesses, with possibly one or two exceptions, knew Devinney and Johnson by sight, and in their descriptions of the relative height and clothes worn by the two men, there were several contradictions, which will in a degree detract from the value of their evidence at the trial.

On the other hand, Constable John M. Short gives the only clean-cut story of the affair that is free from uncertainty. Short is personally acquainted with both men, and he reiterates his statement, made in Saturday's Intelligencer, to the effect that when he looked in the direction of the firing, Johnson was swinging out into the street and firing as he moved. He adds, too, that Johnson's face bore a smile of satisfaction as he stood near the body of McLaughlin.

Speaking of the affair last night, Constable Short said he believed he caught his first view of the men after two shots had been fired. He has a theory that Devinney fired the first and second shots and then passed the gun to Johnson. Of the first and second shots, one, it is believed, took effect, but it was from Johnson that the fatal shot came; this shot, it will be remembered, pierced both lungs.

A gentleman who is interested in the case has sprung the theory that both Devinney and Johnson had guns and used them, and that one of them was thrown over the fence into the creek. It is likely that the creek will be dragged to ascertain whether or not this theory is correct.

The glassworkers' union, of Bridgeport, made up of men employed in the Crystal works, where Charles McLaughlin was employed at the time of his death, will, it is said, employ a lawyer to assist and co-operate with Mr. Meyer in the prosecution of the murderers. It is further said that the glassworkers will employ Mr. John A. Howard, a former prosecuting attorney, who, by the way, during his term, prosecuted both Johnson and Devinney on criminal charges.

At the inquest held by Coroner John W. Schultze, before a jury, on Saturday night, a large number of witnesses were examined and their testimony was most conflicting. The verdict brought in by the jury was as follows:

"We, the jury, find that Charles J. McLaughlin came to his death on the 9th day of September, 1898, in the city of Wheeling, county of Ohio, state of West Virginia, by a wound then and there inflicted on the body of said Charles J. McLaughlin, which said wound was caused by a bullet fired from a pistol in the hands of either Clarence Johnson or Hugh Devinney. The jury further finds that said Clarence Johnson and Hugh Devinney did then and there wilfully murder said Charles J. McLaughlin. In testimony whereof, said coroner and jurors hereto set their hands."

The preliminary judicial hearing was to have been held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock before Justice J. A. Dunning, but at the request of Devinney and Johnson, who at that time were not represented by counsel, it was postponed until next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mr. S. O. Boyce has been engaged as counsel by the accused men and will appear for them at the hearing on Wednesday afternoon.

Since the murder an intense feeling against the murderers has been evinced on the South Side, where the McLaughlin boys are well and quite favorably known, and this sentiment has been growing ever since. On Friday night, some of the boys' more violent adherents were talking of taking the law into their own hands by lynching Devinney and Johnson, but they were talked out of this rash idea by cool-headed friends. Yesterday afternoon, after the funeral of the victim, more of the same kind of talk was heard, but it is confined to a few and does not represent the sentiment of the community, which is that a full measure of justice will result from an abridgment with law and order. Jailor McCormick said last night that he had heard of the lynching talk on the South Side, but did not believe that it was at all general, and he had not considered it necessary to increase the number of men on duty at the jail. Even if there were an attempt to execute swift justice upon the accused men, it would be almost impossible to obtain an entrance to the county jail, which is built to resist a regiment, if necessary.

McLAUGHLIN'S FUNERAL.

It Was Attended by Hundreds of the Dead Man's Friends.

Yesterday afternoon the funeral of Charles McLaughlin, who was murdered by Hugh Devinney and "Randy" Johnson on Friday afternoon, occurred. The services were held at the Church of the Immaculate Conception and were attended by hundreds of the murdered man's friends. Rev. Father Mullen officiated. The interment followed at the Mt. Calvary cemetery.

The Bridgeport and Wheeling glassworkers' unions attended the funeral in bodies, the former accompanied by Hackett's band, of Bellaire. The Bridgeport union marched across the island and down through the city, with their band. Along the line of the funeral cortege, thousands of people were gathered.

The pallbearers were members of the Bridgeport glassworkers' union, and fellow workmen of McLaughlin at the Crystal factory.

When Frank McLaughlin, the brother who jumped out of the window of the photograph gallery and fractured his leg, looked upon the face of his murdered brother, before the body was taken away yesterday afternoon, the scene was an affecting one. The poor fellow broke down completely and cried bitterly. Those who witnessed the parting were forced to tears that were not unmanly in the least.

TRADES ASSEMBLY MEETS

And in a Very Brief Session Transacts
Some Business.

Brevity characterized the regular bi-monthly meeting of the Ohio Valley Trades and Labor Assembly yesterday afternoon. The attendance of delegates was fair, and all the business on the table was cleared in twenty minutes. The recent Labor Day demonstration would have been dispensed with but the general committee was not yet ready to report. After the adjournment the committee got together and adjusted the final details of its work.

The first business was the reading of last meeting's minutes, which were approved. Under the head of boycotts was received a communication from the National Hatters' union, stating those manufacturers under its ban.

Credentials were received from Julius Custer and Jacob Didion, of the tobacco workers.

Delegate Salsbury's motion that the treasurer of the Labor Day committee turn over all moneys from that affair was adopted.

The Labor Day committee reported progress. Later the committee met with President Riley, Secretary Salsbury and the other members. Owing to a clerical error $12 had not been accounted for. This matter was settled after some effort, and the balance in favor of the assembly for its Labor Day picnic, reached the satisfactory figures of $707. The committee's report will be acted on at the assembly's next meeting.

TO REVIVE THE WORKMAN.

Thomas V. Salsbury, editor and founder of the Ohio Valley Workman, stated yesterday that there is likelihood of the paper being set on its feet again at no distant date. Other parties are interested in the attempt and Mr. Salsbury may be one of the company to operate the paper.

AMUSEMENTS.

Funny situations combined with a story of thrilling interest, told in good, vigorous fashion, take Jule Walters' new play, "How Hopper was Sidetracked," entirely out of the realm of rubbish which is generally made to do duty in the theatres devoted to popular priced amusements. There are sensational climaxes with plenty of "thrill" in them, but the play is logical and consistent with a well-sustained love story and a villain whose crimes are inspired by reasonable motives. Mr. Walters has made the hit of his life in the part of Hopper, an eccentric detective, and his supporting company, led by beautiful Louise Llewellyn, is by far the best he has ever had. New scenery and contemporaneous human interest with plenty of novel specialties, assist in making "How Hopper was Sidetracked" one of the big successes of the present season, which will be the attraction at the Grant the first half of this week.

A WONDERFUL TENOR.

Lawrence Chenault, the wonderful tenor, brought out by John W. Vogel, manager of "Darkest America," has returned from England, where he went to sing at the Birmingham Festival. He brings a handsome present from her majesty, given him at Balmoral, where he sang before the queen, a number of American compositions. Chenault is now touring with John W. Vogel's Afro-American Mastodon Minstrels combined with spectacular "Darkest America," which comes to the Grand the last half of this week, opening Thursday night.

Along the Landing.

The Leroy took out her usual Sistersville excursion yesterday.

The marks at 6 p. m. showed 4 feet 2 inches and stationary. Weather, cloudy and cool.

The W. J. Cummins departed yesterday afternoon for Cincinnati, after having a difficult experience in reaching Wheeling from below.

The Kanawha came in from below at 2 p. m. and proceeded up the river for Pittsburgh. She had a lighter in tow and as she draws less water than any other boat of her size on western waters, she expects to reach the Smoky City unless the river goes down in a hurry. This boat's hull is constructed of Washington fir, which is now coming into general use for steamboat hulls. The Queen City's hull is built of the same wood.

Harriet Freeze, engineer at the county building, and Ben Hamilton, of the city engineer's office, left yesterday morning on a week's hunting trip in the wilds of Keyser.

THE RAILROADS.

J. R. C. Wrenshall has been appointed acting division engineer maintenance of way of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, in charge of the third division, which extends from Cumberland to Graton, vice George L. Hall, resigned. The appointment is effective at once. His headquarters will be in Cumberland, Md.

ALREADY CONSOLIDATED.

A great many rumors are afloat that the Baltimore & Ohio railroad intends consolidating its fast freight lines in accordance with the plan only recently adopted by another line. It does not seem to be a very generally known fact that the Baltimore & Ohio railroad did its fast freight consolidating over a year ago. There are two fast freight lines operating over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, one being the Continental and the other the Central States Dispatch. These lines have a joint manager in the person of T. H. Noonan, whose headquarters are in Cincinnati, and there is nothing more to consolidate.
